MPSN Report: Ruth Ann Skaff

- Urban Land Institute Extreme Heat Technical Assistance Panel - MPSN participated in the ULI effort requested by, and completed for, the City of Houston; we'll share recording when available. Recommendations by the Panel for the COH are in excellent alignment with MPSN Livable Center Study, Caroline Promenade effort, and more. Per Marissa Aho (CoH Chief Resilience Officer) The August 2020 Report on the joint heat mapping effort linked below demonstrates the clear need to address this issue- note the coolness of Hermann Park, with heat increasing towards downtown due to concrete, buildings, and loss of canopy.

The critical importance of tree canopy and our heritage trees, green space, building design and siting appropriate for the climate and specific site are emphasized in the Panel findings, all very encouraging work that supports the efforts of Director Aho.

From ULI – "Heat is a significant public health concern in Houston, and the design, construction, and renovation of buildings can help reduce local urban temperatures and maintain comfortable and safe inside temperatures. The City of Houston has invited the Urban Land Institute to conduct a virtual Technical Assistance Panel to provide strategic recommendations on how the City can help accelerate the implementation of building cooling strategies."

- Museum Park Super Neighborhood Security Alliance is up and running! This effort was very helpful and thanks to Deirdre Barrett, is back on the streets. This is a collaboration of the many high level security teams that we have in Museum Park, simply knowing each other, who to call, enhancing communication between all in Museum Park regarding security, special events, other security concerns that we may have. The Alliance includes the museums, residents, churches, businesses, HPD, Park Rangers, Harris Co. Constables, District D, and anyone who has an interest in enhanced security in Museum Park.
